FOREWORD

This Bulletin of Departmental Statistics, issued by the Department of State and Finance for public information as authorized by Section 862 of The Administrative Code, represents a departure in the publications of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Heretofore statistics have been widely scattered in Smull's Legislative Hand Book and in the reports of the various Departments. No worthy attempt has previously been made to bring into one volume all the statistics of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that are of general value.

Much of the material given herein has never been published before in any form, let alone in one complete volume readily available for the use of all. Financial statistics of the State are omitted in this volume because they appear in detail in the budget.

Credit must be given particularly to Dr. C. A. Kulp of the University of Pennsylvania, who helped in the preparation of the statistics for many of the Departments, and to Francis B. Haas, Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction who acted as Chairman of the Committee on this subject. On this Committee each Department had its statistical representative.

CLYDE L. KING,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

¹The samples which actually constitute violations of the pure food regulations are an extremely small percentage of all the foods offered for sale in Pennsylvania. Because of the fact that all samples taken by the food agents are selected with great care the number of violations is surprisingly low and is evidence of the general observance of the pure food regulation.

¹The figures covering the years 1919 and 1923 were taken for comparison since 1919 was the last year the counties had complete supervision of the enforcement of the "Dog Law." In January 1920 the Department first employed an agent to check against violators of the law. In January 1922 the supervision of the enforcement of the Law was placed with the Bureau of Animal Industry. The decrease in number of dogs killed by police officers is due to more general observance of the law by dog owners and to a decrease in fraudulent claims for the killing of dogs. (See note 1 under Table 10).

¹The decrease in the number of dogs reported killed by police officers is due to the more general observance of the Law requiring owners to have dogs properly licensed and tagged, resulting in fewer stray unlicensed dogs; and to the regulation requiring the tips of the ears to be presented when claim is made for the fee allowed. Investigation, when the enforcement of the Law was taken over by the Bureau of Animal Industry (1922), disclosed that fraudulent claims were being presented. Several constables were convicted and sentenced to jail.

Note: The above summary includes all figures available prior to January 1, 1924, (Philadelphia not included). During 1915-16-17-18, the counties did not report any monies paid out for damage to poultry. In 1923 the investigation and appraisal of damages to livestock and poultry was placed in the hands of local appraisers.

The figures showing number of dogs licensed and fees collected from 1915 to 1921, includes Pittsburgh and Scranton; in 1922-23, does not include Pittsburgh or Scranton. Up to January 15, 1922, the license fee was set by the Counties. Several counties set the fee at $2.00 for a male or spayed female and $4.00 for a female dog. From January 15, 1922 the fee has been uniform throughout the State, $1.00 for a male or spayed female and $2.00 for a female dog. 1922 fees include $14,377.00 fines. 1923 fees include $52,952.00 fines.

NOTE: A Law went into effect, January 1, 1908, requiring licensing of all stallions and jacks standing for public service; 1921 amendment increased license fee and made it unlawful to stand any unregistered stallions for public service. This is largely accountable for the decrease in licenses issued after 1921.

The statistics were compiled from actual returns received from the fishermen. No estimates have been made. It will be noted that in 1921 over 51,000 permits were issued and in 1922 only 33,000. The cause for this was undoubtedly conditions of the waters in certain sections of the State, due to the extreme heat during the summer months.

Pennsylvania now owns 1,131,277 acres of forest land located in 29 counties. This land, purchased at an average cost of $2.26 per acre, is now worth $11.80 per acre. During the 25 years that the State has owned this forest land there has been a total net gain of over $5,000,000 in the value of the State Forests. European experience and extensive studies of the State Forests of Pennsylvania show that a net return of at least $5.00 per acre per year will be derived from the State Forests when they are restored to full production.

The State Forests are handled as a business enterprise. The first receipts from the State Forests were obtained in 1900, when $1,227.87 were taken in from the sale of forest products. The annual income has increased at a very rapid rate, for in 1923 it amounted to $113,094.34. During this one year the income was greater than during any two previous years in the history of the Department, and exceeded the total income of the first sixteen years during which the State Forests were operated.

During the last 25 years, 34,907,279 trees have been planted on the State Forests at an average cost of $9.29 per acre. There are now growing in the State Forests approximately 23,500 acres of thrifty plantations of white pine, red pine, Scotch pine, white ash, red oak, black walnut, and other important forest trees.

Fifteen years ago there developed a considerable demand from private owners of forest land for forest tree planting stock. To meet this demand the Department of Forests and Waters was authorized in 1910 to cooperate with private planters by supplying them with planting stock at the cost of production. In 1915 a fuller cooperation was authorized by supplying planting stock to private planters at the cost of packing and transportation. Forest tree planting by private planters has grown by leaps and bounds in Pennsylvania. The accompanying table shows that in 1910 only 66,374 trees were planted, and by 1915 a total of 115,577 were set out. Less than a decade later—1923—the number had increased to almost 5,500,000 trees. In the spring of 1924 almost 9,000,000 trees were made available to private planters throughout the State to reforest their idle land. Pennsylvania now leads all other states in the number of trees she supplies to private owners of forest land.

In order to supply the trees required for planting on the State Forests and by private planters, a number of forest tree nurseries have been established by the Department. The first forest tree nursery was established at Mont Alto in 1900. It has now an annual capacity of 5,000,000 trees. Two other large nurseries are now in operation in the State, one at Clearfield and the other at Greenwood Furnace. Several smaller nurseries are also operated by the Department in cooperation with State institutions. The total annual output of the nurseries operated by the Department has almost reached the 10 million mark. Forest tree planting is now an established business in Pennsylvania in which the State and private planters are actively engaged.

During the past 5 years (1919 to 1923) forest fires were responsible for more than $3,000,000 damage in Pennsylvania. The average annual damage for this 5-year period was over $600,000—an average of $2.40 per acre of forest land burned over. The extinction of the fires during this 5-year period cost over $92,000 per year, an average of 36¢ per acre of forest land burned. Forest fires continue to be the greatest enemy of the forests of the State, and it is significant that in spite of the severe fire seasons of 1923, which was the severest in the history of the Department, the area of the average fire was only 105 acres. During the spring of 1924—the lightest forest fire season in the history of the Department—the size of the average fire was only 46 acres.

Records show that the 3,539 forest fires that occurred in Pennsylvania during 1923 burned over a total of 375,737 acres, and resulted in a total damage of $794,727.37. The largest area was burned over in Schuylkill county, followed closely by Luzerne, Dauphin, Clinton, and Elk. Each of these counties had more than 20,000 acres burned during 1923. The largest number of fires occurred in Luzerne county, which is debited with 520. The highest estimated damage occurred in Schuylkill county, in which the 1923 damage is estimated at $84,661.60. The cost of extinction ranged all the way from 1¢ per acre in Beaver county to $1.54 per acre in Union county. The amount of damage per acre ranged from 90¢ in Wayne county to $12.02 in Union county. The damage that forest fires do consists not only of the trees and other forest products they destroy, but also in preventing trees from growing on areas that can produce only one crop, and that is a tree crop.

Man is responsible for practically all the forest fires that occur in Pennsylvania. During the last six years only 49 forest fires were caused by lightning out of a total of 13,755 fires. Railroads have been responsible for 34% of the fires that occurred during the last 6 years and caused almost 40% of the fires of 1923. Transients, which means campers, hunters and fishermen, are responsible for almost one-fifth of the forest fires. While there are still a considerable number of fires, the cause of which is unknown, yet the percentage of unknown fires has been decreasing rapidly, due to the extension of the forest fire protective system and the development of a more efficient fire fighting organization.

Statistics show that during the last 6 years an average of 2,292 forest fires occurred annually in Pennsylvania. There are two distinct fire seasons in Pennsylvania, viz. the spring fire season and the fall fire season. The spring fire season is the most severe, for statistics covering the last six years show that 75% of the total forest fires occurred during the three months of March, April, and May; and during the two months of October and November, which comprise the fall fire season, 14% of the forest fires occurred. During the five months of March, April, May, October, and November, which comprise what is generally known as the spring and the fall fire seasons, occurred almost 90% of all the fires of the whole year.

1923 -----	38	131	169
Average per year -----	31.7	110.9	143

Note: It is safe to say that 50 per cent of the hunting accidents occurring each year in Pennsylvania are self-inflicted through the careless use of firearms. This is an appalling loss, but the same number of persons engaged in practically any other strenuous outdoor recreational pursuits during a like period will show almost the same percentage of accidents.

¹Amounts here given are sums actually received.²Endowment earnings, where obtainable, not total endowments, were selected to compare with the other yearly figures.³This amount was secured by dividing the total expenditures shown in the preceding column by the total yearly number of treatment days of each hospital.

These figures are, therefore, only approximate.

⁴Du Bois, St. Vincent's, Warner, and Warren General Hospitals reported no State money received.⁵Oil City reported $47,000.00 endowment, but no endowment earnings.⁶No report received.⁷No State-aid.⁸Not open.

¹These do not include beds for employees.

²The per cent hospital in use was obtained by dividing the average number of beds in use by the total number of beds for patients.

³The total pay patients includes part-pay patients as well as full-pay patients.

⁴The total hospital days represents the total number days of treatment given to all in-patients.

⁵The per cent hospital days free was obtained by dividing the number of days treatment given free patients by the total number days of treatment.

⁶This ratio represents the proportion of the hospital service devoted to free patients.

⁷The distribution of these totals was not reported by the hospital.

⁸Mt. Pleasant for this year made no report of in-patients.

⁹The Reading Hospital was unable to separate free patients.

¹⁰The Woman's Medical College distributed the total in-patients between ward and private.

¹¹No state aid.

¹²No report received.

¹³Not open.

²These receipts include amounts received from sale of produce, income from inmates, etc.

³Only Almshouse expenses given.

⁴Current expenditures exclude those for improvements, new buildings, payment of loans, etc.

⁵The cost per day per capita was obtained by dividing the current expenditures by the total number of days support given inmates. These figures are only approximate.

⁶Pittsburgh City Home comes under Cities. The remainder of the county is under the directors of the poor.

⁷This information was not given.

⁸The Almshouses in Carbon, Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties overlap in their territories, one district including parts of two or more counties. The homes are listed according to their geographic location.

⁹No report received.

¹⁰Not available separately. Included in Philadelphia population figures.

¹¹Figures given here cover Almshouse and Hospital for the Insane.
